Laurence Rees's unforgettable account of the notorious Nazi camp is a story of murder, brutality, courage, escape and survival, and a powerful study of how a human tragedy of such immense scale could have happened.

ACCLAIMED IN BRITAIN...

'excellent' BOYD TONKIN, Independent

'...a key to understanding man's inhumanity to man.' IAN THOMSON, Guardian

'Well-written...with striking testimonies from bystanders, perpetrators and victims... The interviews with SS men, and sundry European Fascists, are genuinely revealing, and must have been exceptionally difficult to negotiate.'
MICHAEL BURLEIGH, Daily Telegraph

AND ACROSS THE WORLD...

'Devastating... Rees's research is impeccable and intrepid... Ultimately he does at the gut level what Hannah Arendt achieved some 40 years ago at the level of philosophy: he forces the reader to shift the Holocaust out of the realm of nightmare or Gothic horror and acknowledge it as something all too human... Scrupulous and honest, this book is utterly without illusions.'
DAVID VON DREHLE, Washington Post, USA

'This magnificent book... exciting and disturbing at the same time.'
RAFAEL NUÑEZ FLORENCIO, El Mundo, Spain

'I believe that Rees's book will be included in the canon of fundamental works shaping our knowledge about the Holocaust.'
WLADYSLAW BARTOSZEWSKI, former Polish Foreign Minister and one-time inmate of Auschwitz

HISTORY
£8.99

ISBN 0-563-52296-8

9 780563 522966 >

Front cover photograph by Walter Frentz © Ullstein Bild