She was a Jew who worked in Gestapo headquarters; a sensitive young girl given a mission to kill ...

INSIDE THE GESTAPO

Between 1942 and 1945, Helene Moszkiewiez worked for the Gestapo chief in Brussels. By day she typed deathlists of prominent Belgian Jews — by night she risked her life in a frantic race to warn them to leave town. She harboured stranded British soldiers in her lodgings and, under orders from the Resistance, stabbed to death a high ranking Gestapo officer.

Her testament to the nightmare of her secret war is an inspiring, true-life war thriller. It is also the unforgettable story of one woman's will to survive against all odds.
